No, you must always specify a domain name when signing up for our service. You can either purchase a new domain name or use an existing domain name that you have already owned. To purchase or to transfer a domain name, please go to <http://asphostserver.supersite.myorderbox.com/>

A new domain name will normally take between 24-48 hours for activation. While waiting for your domain name activation, you can always use the assigned temporary URL to test your website on our server

You can transfer all your files via FTP to our server and then, you can use the temporary URL to test and preview your site on our server.

Once your website is live, you can browse your site using your original URL. This is completed automatically and you dont have to do anything
